Project Title: Increasing agricultural productivity through digital farming

The decrease in agricultural productivity has greatly reduced in Kasese district and the Rwenzori region due to poor mechanisms of understanding the new and modern agricultural farming methods that would highly increase yields. And even the little yields gained are poorly marketed due to lack of enough means and knowledge for rural farmers. YESI Africa aims to use this project to bring a new face to rural farmers through digital farming that would help increase their productivity as well as changing the narrative of rural farmers into modern farming through increased research and marketing increasing information flow.
